Whole Earth Lectronic Link
Interoffice Bypass Project M-1

On Sunday, 25th March 1991, the WELL and Whole Earth Review main office LANs were interconnected. This will permit direct access to the WELL from any Macintosh in the WER offices, and direct access to the WER LaserWriters from the WELL offices.

At this point in time only one workstation in the WER main office can access the WELL directly. This workstation is the one located on the north wall of Keith Jordan's cubicle (this is the same machine that was connected previously). If you wish your machine to be connected, you will need to make a request. This request must contain:

your name
the location of the machine you wish to have connected reason for connection the agreement of all users of that machine to not tamper with the connection

No connections will be made without all of these items. All additional connections will be made on a time-available basis.

The machines in the Production Offices will be connected as soon as time permits, but no later than May 1991.

For more information, or for installation requests, please contact:

Kenton A. Hoover
Chief Engineer
Whole Earth Lectronic Link
shibumi@well.sf.ca.us